CROSBY, IN ELOQUENT APPEAL TO JURY, SAYS EX-CHIEF IS INNOCENT

Prosecution's Witnesses Are Flayed
By Nedderman's Attorney; Mrs.
Nedderman Weeps in Silence

BIG CROWD PACKS COURTROOM

With a sustained eloquence such as even those halls of rhetoric had seldom known, Peter J. Crosby argued for two hours this morning in Judge James G. Quinn's court for the liberty of John H. Nedderman, former chief of police. From the moment he launched himself upon his address until the court clock rang the noon hour, Crosby kept the undivided attention of jury and spectators, but for the brief recess that was granted the former in the midst of the morning.

Attacks upon the testimony of Loorz and other witnesses, and upon those witnesses themselves, and a scathing denunciation of Captain of Detectives Walter J. Petersen, more than once repeated, as the author of the prosecution of Nedderman, a picking of the defendant, and a man's name, accused and grievously maligned, and his testimony as obviously the product of innocence and truth, filled the periods of his oratory.

ONLY HALF THROUGH AT NOON HOUR
At noon he was but fairly started upon the voyage he apparently had projected. It was evident he would take all of this afternoon session of court as well. This would leave the rebuttal argument of District Attorney Ezra Decoto to tomorrow, as well as the instructions of the court and the retirement of the jury to its deliberations. Hopes of a conclusion of the case today disappeared when the thoroughness with which Crosby proposed to review the evidence was apparent.

Public recognition of this as one of the high lights of the whole trial was in evidence before court opened. A half hour before, indeed, the seats began to fill in Judge Quinn's court and by the opening hour the space within the railing was crowded, every seat was occupied and the ushers were almost impasseable.

MRS. NEDDERMAN NEEDS SILENTLY.

Apparently almost recovered from the hysteria which drove her yesterday afternoon to an interruption of the trial and was followed by her led from the courtroom, Mrs. Nedderman sat again alone at her husband's side. At times when Crosby's argument reached a momentary climax she patted her husband's arm or permitted her hand to close upon his. At other times she went silently or bowed her head until her black hat hid most of her face from the court.

Despite the industry with which Mr. Wittschien sought yesterday to make you consider favorable to his cause, there has been no offering in this trial, "begged Crosby, "he has, with the characteristic manner of his prosecution, avoided and avoided and dodged and ignored the charge on which this defendant has been brought into this court. In all of his address there was not a single mention of the indictment. They created that indictment, but they ignore it. They favored it, but they will not fondle it.

OFFERS EXPLANATION OF SUDDEN DISMAY

"Better than we, better than I can tell you, does the prosecution know why this omission was not allowed, that it was intentional, not accidental. They know when Herman Loorz, their star witness, quit this stand that he had so discredited himself and their case that this indictment was no longer tenable. Dismay was spread at that moment through the ranks of the prosecution, and from that day to this they have tried this defendant, not upon their chosen indictment, but upon all twelve of the indictments against him, all thirteen of the indictments against David Cockrell and all five of the indictments against Corporal Thomas O'Neill."

"The trick will avail them naught. They found the word of that one man undependable. But the testimony of one guilty but unconvicted criminal, even though you add to it the support of a hundred others like him, will offer no support to their sinking ship. Upon the word of such persons, men who would, for private aims and gain, wrest from an honorable and upright man his liberty and his right to the pursuit of happiness nothing permanent, nothing of value, can be won."

REFERS TO GANG MURDER IN NEW YORK

As he referred to Nedderman, Crosby drew close to him, behind Mrs. Nedderman, and laid his hand

LABOR CHIEFS TRY TO AVERT SHIP STRIKE OF MILLIONAIRE

Decision of Bay Yard Managers to Close Down Until September 15 Expected to Expedite Settlement Terms

Union Leaders Representing 150,000 Workers Arrive for Conference Over Scale to Succeed the Macy Award

With the arrival of James V. Ryan, international representative of the Sheet Metal Workers and Coppersmiths, conference will be held which, it is believed, will cause the immediate return of 160 coppersmiths now on strike in the bay shipyards and avert the threatened close of these yards. Ryan, who is in San Francisco, indicated today that he had taken the matter up and probably will issue a statement some time tomorrow in which the coppersmiths are demanding $1 an hour instead of the 55 cents now being paid.

International representatives of the various shipyard crafts who will go into conference Monday with the shipyard owners on the Pacific coast, and will represent 150,000 workers, are arriving here and plans are already being formulated for the wage demands to be made under an agreement which will supplant the present Macy scale.

OTHER LEADERS ARRIVE FOR CONFERENCE.

Headed by James O'Connell, president of the sheet metal department of the American Federation of Labor, as chairman for the man at the joint conference, the following registered at the San Francisco hotel today:

Louis Weyand, president Boiler-makers and Iron Shipbuilders; J. W. Kline, president Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers; Milton Blackwells, president of the Operating Engineers; Robert Heckner, vice-president of the International Association of Machinists; G. G. Gillette, president of the Society of Draughtsmen; Michael Kehoe, vice-president of the Iron Moulders; Thomas Behney, vice-president Pattern Makers' League of North America; and J. V. Ryan, international representative Sheet Metal Workers and Coppersmiths.

The labor leaders began a conference in executive session today at which Chairman O'Connell presented the demands of the various organizations by their international representation, and tomorrow a conference with the labor delegates will be held in San Francisco.

INTERESTS OF MEN AND BUILDERS ARE ONE.

That the interest of the men and shipbuilders are one and that no opposition of a serious nature is expected at the joint conference, was indicated by O'Connell, who said:

"We feel that the demands to be made will meet with little opposition by the master shipbuilders, and believe in an arrangement satisfactory to all concerned will be obtained with little delay after the negotiations which are involved in the presentation of both sides in a conference where so many different crafts are represented."

WOMEN MAY TURN AGAINST HIM, EXPECTED.

Assistant General Manager A. S. Gunn of the Bethlehem corporation, will represent the employers as their chairman in the conference.

ALLIES TO KEEP SOVIET FORCES FROM VIENNA

Speaking of Lynch, I want to impress for a moment to September 1, 1917, when this defendant became chief of police, and call your attention to his first act. It was to remove the police adviser of Mrs. Wilson, Captain Charles H. Bock, from the central station to the northern district.

"His second act was of a comparable nature: It was to bring in Captain Lynch from the northern district to be captain in the central district in which Chinatown and the gambling clubs were located. If one could say, you have saved yourself better than by bringing Bock out and moving Lynch in? Was this the act of a wicked and grafting official?"

DISCUSSES TESTIMONY OF PROSECUTION.

Crosby proceeded to the discussion of a series of alleged discrepancies in the testimony of Loorz. He pointed to the fact that Loorz had been unable to remember the telephone number which he said Nedderman had left for him to call, though this was quickly remembered when he was a witness in the present trial.

It had previously been testified, said Crosby, that Bard heard this conversation between himself and Nedderman, who said to him he was to stay everything upon a final effort to establish a Soviet republic in Vienna similar to their own before the present government succeeds in signing peace with the allies and placing itself on a solid basis.

According to letters which the department of justice has handed over to the police, Bard acted as host to Alfred and Helen Wilson in their home, and he made a point of the fact that Bard had not been subpoenaed to corroborate his testimony.

CORRESPONDENTS WITH OREGON WIDOW.

Incidental to the hearing in the case of Mrs. Wilson, she and her daughter Alice Lee daffidavies today to the effect that Mrs. Wilson had nothing to do in the circumstances that caused her daughter's illness. It is expected that the daughter will be well enough Friday to appear as a witness in her mother's behalf.

Bank Bandits Kill Officer in Battle

NAPLES, Tuesday, July 15.—The steamer, Cablons arrived here from London today, but was stopped by workmen in the harbor, who refused to allow her to continue her voyage because she carried ammunition. The crew of the Cablons was forced to unload the cargo, after which the attempted robbery yesterday of an east end bank was allowed to proceed.

ACCUSE MAJOR AS LOVE AGENT

OF MILLIONAIRE

Threat to Give Publicity Alleged to Have Been Used by Rich Nurseryman to Keep "Contract Wife" from Going

Police Prepare Charges Based on Investigation of Charles Ward and Relations to the Women; Guard Needed, Said

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—New chapters in the love history of Charles W. Ward, millionaire nurseryman of Humboldt county, were revealed today with additional data turned over to the police department by the Department of Justice.

The naming of a certain major is referred to in this report as "it is believed" that he was for Ward, for which service he demanded a commission from them and all money and presents they receive from Ward. This is substantiated by the intimate acquaintance Major — has with the women who have been associated with Ward at different times.

Another woman, evidently a contract wife, who has come with him to the United States, was withdrawn from the service of Ward, according to the report.

International representatives of the various shipyard crafts who will go into conference Monday with the shipyard owners on the Pacific coast, and will represent 150,000 workers, are arriving here and plans are already being formulated for the wage demands to be made under an agreement which will supplant the present Macy scale.

WITNESS STRUGGLES WITH VARIOUS DEFINITIONS USED BY HIS PUBLICITY MAN AND GIVES HIS VIEWS ON SAME PREPAREDNESS

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS RELEASED WIFE TO TRIBUNE.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 16.—In a moment of petulance the witness, Henry Ford, in a $1,000 libel suit against the Chicago Daily Tribune, admitted that he was "an ignorant idealist." Subsequently he reversed his statement.

This was one of the alleged libelous charges made against him in the Tribune editorial. Attorney Elliott G. Stevenson, for the Tribune, had been asking questions to establish if the witness was an idealist of fact, was ignorant. The witness said that he made the admission merely to stop the examination. Later, when formally asked to admit that he was an "ignorant idealist" he declined to do so.

In the course of the examination, Ford defined a traitor as "one who works against the government," an idealist as "one who helps others to make a profit," and, evidently with Arnold Benedict vaguely in mind, described Benedict as "a writer."

WILSON'S SPEECHES READ INTO TRIAL RECORD.

Much time was consumed in reading President Wilson's preparedness speeches of 1916.

The thought that Henry Ford, who had been asking questions to establish if the witness was an idealist of fact, was ignorant, was raised by the witness.

FORD PETULANT AS ATTORNEYS HECKLE HIM DURING TRIAL OF MILLION DOLLAR LIBEL SUIT

'Idealist' Given New Definition by Ford

MOUNT CLEMENS, July 16.—Henry Ford gave a novel definition of "idealism" while being questioned by Attorney Stevenson, counsel for the Chicago Tribune, which Ford is suing for one million dollars for alleged criminal libel.

The verbal bout reached its climax as follows, with Stevenson doing the quizzing:

"Well, all right, Mr. Ford. Now I'll ask you what an 'idealist' is. You understand it?"

The witness thought for a moment and then replied:

"One who helps others to make a profit."

Mr. Stevenson started to ask questions about history but was stopped by Judge Tucker suggested that this line had been followed far enough.

"But this man sets himself up as an idealist and wants to go to the United States," said Mr. Ford.

Mr. Ford interrupted to say:

"I can get a man in five minutes to tell me those things."

"Could you get one if you were speaking in the Senate?" asked Mr. Stevenson.

Counsel and the judge became involved in a controversy over side issues and the question was not answered.

Mr. Stevenson started to ask questions about history but was stopped by Judge Tucker who said that subject had been sufficiently covered.

"All right," said the lawyer.

"Now, Mr. Ford, soberly, are you not ready to admit that you are an 'ignorant idealist'?" That is what the Tribune called you and your counsel declare that it is true."

The lawyer smiled and said:

"Well, Mr. Ford, I guess I will let the question of 'ignorant idealist' rest right here."

"Anything against the government," said Mr. Ford.

Mr. Stevenson instituted a torrent of objections by asking the meaning of the word "traitor" in the course of which Mr. Ford interposed:

"I admit I'm an 'ignorant idealist.'"

MAKES ADOPTION TO SUPPRESS OPPOSING LAWYER.

"Why, Mr. Ford," said Mr. Stevenson, in surprise, "you admit that you still have not to ask you any more questions along that line."

"I'll admit it if it will close this talk. It is for you to decide anyway."

The lawyer smiled and said:

"Oh, no, replied the witness.

"Come now, be a dear good little girl and come back and say that you love me, but will you have to convince me of this love?"

"Yours, with all my love."

MEANS ADDITION TO SUPPRESS OPPOSING LAWYER.

The following statement in part from Miss J. Lewis, Clift Hotel, the nurse who attended Ward during the influenza epidemic in the Whitecomb Hotel, has also been turned over to the police department.

"Ward was crazy over women and unless you fish or cut bait I shall turn your letter and photo around to one of my prepared friends. Also the story how you have done your affectionate loving millionaire suitor. It will be a rich, racy story that everyone will read twice."

"So come now, be a dear good little girl and come back and say that you love me, but will you have to convince me of this love?"

"I'm a scoundrel talker," said Miss Lewis, "but I'm not a scoundrel in heart."

"I'm a wild party one night when I returned from a constitutional, that a house detective asked the women to leave. On another occasion a woman who gave her name as Miss Delsie appeared and demanded to see Ward, saying he had promised her $1,000 for a certain ring he had given her. He told me afterwards that the

Woman's Irresistible Impulse For Gambling Theme of Play

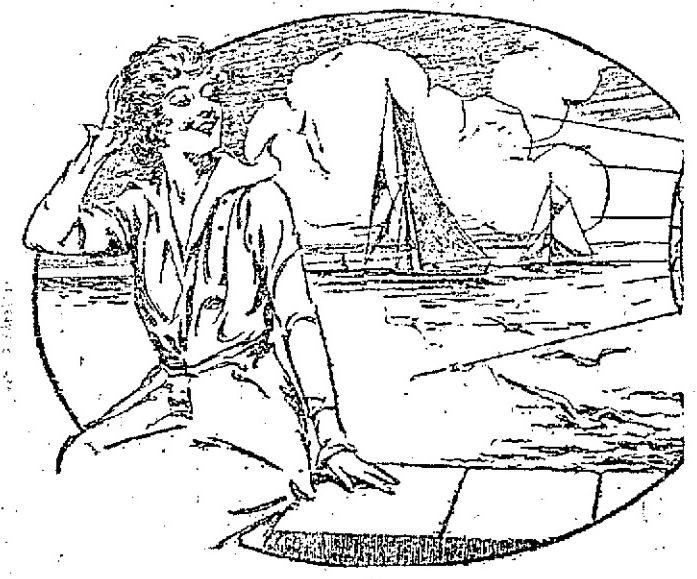

Elsie Ferguson, who plays three roles in "The Avalanche" today at the Franklin.

With scenes ranging from Monte Carlo and Spain to the fashionable world of New York, Elsie Ferguson portrays three characters in her latest picture, "The Avalanche," taken from Gertrude Atherton's novel and shown today and all this week at the Franklin.

The scenes in which she appears simultaneously as Alice Delano, keeper of a smart gambling establishment, and Helene, her daughter, have been handled most artistically. The young girl, born with a gambling strain in her blood, hates the sight of a card or a roulette wheel as she hates the sight of a venomous snake. Yet she can make no effort to repress their call.

Costumes designed by Galet in the most extreme style shown to the public in many years, are worn by Elsie Ferguson in the three parts, all woven of wealth and extravagance. Her own pearls, earrings and bracelets are shown for the first time on any screen.

At the Kresson Hall, Caine's famous novel that stirred two continents, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," is the feature. The sensational story of a young girl sold in marriage to gratify her father's lust for power, shows what love, marriage, duty mean to a woman. This picture of a young wife's heart, is the greatest woman drama ever brought to the screen. It gives woman a soul of her own.—Advertisement.

D'ANNUNZIO TO MAKE FLIGHT OF 30,000 MILES

ROME, July 16. (By The Associated Press.)—Gabriele D'Annunzio, poet and aviator, has arranged to attempt a flight from Rome to Tokyo and return. The trip will last a month and the aviator purposed to cover about 20,000 miles.

The route will lay through Asia Minor, India, Tongking and China to Japan. D'Annunzio has arranged for stations along the route where he can replenish his supplies.

JAPANESE MAY ISSUE PLEDGE ON SHANTUNG

By J. BART CAMPBELL
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Japan may issue soon an official declaration to the world that she will abide strictly by the pledges made by her representatives at the peace conference that she would respect the territorial integrity of Shantung if permitted to retain certain economic rights in the Chinese province which she wrested from Germany during the war.

This was ascertained today not only from Democratic senators who have been in close touch with the White House since President Wilson's recent return from Paris, but from Republican senators who claimed to possess trustworthy information regarding the Shantung settlement.

HOPES FOR PROMPT ACTION. The Democratic senators expressed the hope that Japan would not delay in making her attitude toward the Shantung question so clear as to leave no doubt as to her intentions regarding the Chinese province. By doing so Japan would do much to clarify the situation, they added, and thereby generally assist President Wilson's supporters in the Senate in overcoming some of the bitter opposition which had developed in the Senate to the ratification of the peace treaty with the Shantung settlement as one of its provisions.

It was pointed out that the pledges of the Japanese peace commissioners with respect to Shantung were expressly omitted from the peace treaty at their request lest the incorporation of them in the document be construed as a reflection on the word and honor of the Japanese.

CHARGES OF CRITICS. Senators arrayed against the United States giving approval to the Shantung settlement have repeatedly declared that all the assurances the American people had that Japan would surrender all territorial rights within the Chinese province were given on the "promises" of the Japanese peace commissioners and not upon any definite announcement by the Japanese government.

General Pershing went to the British war office yesterday and presented Distinguished Service Medals to Viscount Milner, secretary for the colonies; Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary for war; Viscount Poole; Baron Weir, director-general of aircraft production; Baron Inverforth (Andre Weir), former minister of munitions, and Felix Cassel, judge advocate general.

In presenting the medals, General Pershing said they were a token of the appreciation of the American government for services rendered.

ARGONNE BIG TURNING POINT: GEN. PERSHING

LONDON, July 16.—The American offensive, known as the Meuse-Argonne battle, cut the German lines of communication and made further resistance impossible, General John J. Pershing told the American Luncheon club here this afternoon.

Guests who included Sir Thomas Lipton, cheered the American commander for five minutes. He concluded a stirring tribute to the valor of the men who fought under his command.

General Pershing reviewed the early stages of the development of the American army in France until the first division entered an active sector near Moulidier and struck the first offensive blow by capturing Cagny village.

"One of Cagny had an electrical effect throughout the allied armies," he said. "It aroused new hope in those who had struggled for three years against great odds."

Ambassador Davis presided as toastmaster at the luncheon. Immediately afterward General Pershing and his staff left to attend the dinner.

Distinguished service medal was today conferred upon General Pershing. The ceremony took place at the war office.

British officials made speeches in which they warmly praised the aid given to the allied cause by the United States and expressed their admiration.

Among those present were Colonel William S. Small, secretary of state for war; Viscount Milner, former secretary of state for war; Lord Piel and Lord Wimborne.

A composite regiment of the United States soldiers, 3,000 strong, headed by General Pershing, will lead the great Victory march through London on Saturday, according to the completed program announced last night. The decision to have the allied troops march in alphabetical order as the nations resulted in the place of honor going to the Americans.

After the Belgian contingent, the French, a thousand strong, will follow and then a small body of Italians, a detachment of Japanese and other allied representatives. The forces of the British empire will march behind the allied contingents.

Welcoming General Pershing to London, the Daily Mail said today:

"We do not forget what we owe the United States. General Pershing and his men, in the dark hours of 1918, when the German legions were driving toward Paris, General Pershing said to Marshal Foch: 'Here are our men, trained and untrained. Take them and use them.' This magnificent gesture of sacrifice restored confidence from that time on."

"At Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and the Argonne the Americans played the essential part in the defeat of the enemy. Their fine courage, their splendid comradeship and boundless fresh reserves behind the war-worn lines were precious assets."

General Pershing went to the British war office yesterday and presented Distinguished Service Medals to Viscount Milner, secretary for the colonies; Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary for war; Viscount Poole; Baron Weir, director-general of aircraft production; Baron Inverforth (Andre Weir), former minister of munitions, and Felix Cassel, judge advocate general.

In presenting the medals, General Pershing said they were a token of the appreciation of the American government for services rendered.

Shout Frightens Sneak Thief Away

"Git outta there," shouted T. W. Cutting, 412 Hanover avenue, to an invisible intruder at his window early today. The occupant then fell asleep again.

This morning Cutting discovered that a screen on the window had been cut by a burglar. His shout had frightened the stranger off.

William Anderson, 1627 Seventh street and Ohio Avenue, Atlantic and Pine streets, was both victim of a burglar. Their rooms were entered and clothing was stolen.

NORTHCOTT OPENS DEFENSE FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Dr. Edmund Northcott appeared today before Superior Judge M. J. Roche, accused of the indictments charging first degree murder in the case of Mrs. Eleanor Anderson, who died after an alleged criminal operation had been performed by Dr. Northcott.

A demurrer alleging "once in jeopardy" was filed by his attorneys, Frank Maxix and William J. Kelly. The bill was found to be a property bond of $10,000 as substitute for the $5,000 cash bail upon which Dr. Northcott is now at liberty, will be offered tomorrow if the demurrer is overruled.

The attorneys in the case who have superceded H. H. McPhee and J. C. Cunningham who defended Dr. Northcott in the Inez Reed trial at Redwood City, said today that their argument on the demurrer was based on the fact that Dr. Northcott had been arrested, charged with the Anderson murder on March 10 and that a grand jury had refused to indict him, hence that the action of a later grand jury in charging him with the same murder had illegally placed his liberty in jeopardy for a crime for which he had already been dismissed.

"Baron Makino's promise to Clemenceau, Wilson, Lloyd George and Orlando, however, but not to the Allies," said Milet, "No one can doubt its sincerity. The only way to quiet American apprehension is to publish the text, which Japan should now do. France and Great Britain never would have consented to the Shantung clauses if they involved the dismemberment of China."

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—Philippe Milet, prominent writer on diplomatic questions, today urged Japan to make public at once the terms of her confidential undertaking to the council of four to restore Shantung to China, its quiet opposition in the United States Senate to the peace treaty.

"Baron Makino's promise to Clemenceau, Wilson, Lloyd George and Orlando, however, but not to the Allies,"

Jury Is Asked to Acquit Ex-Chief Arguments May Last All Day

Loorz's testimony. This he explained by quoting Bard's testimony in the present trial that, until this spring he had not known the sound of Nedderman's voice.

On two occasions, once in the Darter's Club and once at the city hall, he defended Nedderman, but that Loorz had denied being so warned on either occasion. Crosby quoted from the testimony of Chief Lynch to both occasions when the chief corroborated Nedderman's claim to having admonished the gambler.

CROSBY SCORES
LOORZ AND PETERSEN.

"Oh Loorz and Petersen," Crosby cried at this point, "you ought to get down upon your knees and crawl up them through the streets of the city, arm with your heads down in shame plead for pardon and forgiveness for your efforts to put this innocent man behind the bars. But nothing they can ever do can atone for this misdeed. I have the highest honor for the man who dons the uniform of his country and offers his life in its service. But when Captain Petersen stands upon the brink of two eternities and gazes back upon his achievements and the failures of his life there will be this one thing to mar the beauty of that prospect, the hours in which he planned and strove and sought to drag this devoted wife and family and lodge into a felon's cell."

Crosby took the prosecution severely to task for introducing the Chinese cases in this trial. He said the defendant was in no wise involved therein nor had the least connection been shown between him and the Chinese lottery. Then, and again on indication, he said, that Cockrell had acted for Nedderman in those instances even if it could be shown that he acted for the defense in the case of Loorz.

LOOKS "POOR MEMORY" IS REFERRED TO.

"In this world," said Crosby, "the responsibility for a man's own deeds must be upon his own shoulders and God knows that is enough. But when they seek to load other burdens upon this man's shoulders too, when they fare thus far astile it is solely and only to convince us of the truth of things which they cannot by themselves prove."

Crosby pointed out that in one instance, before the grand jury, Loorz had spoken definitely of May 15 as the date upon which he made a payment to Nedderman, but that he purposely made this indefinite by saying "on or about the 15th of May" when he came upon the stand in the present trial.

"In the record," Crosby pointed out as one of his chief shots of the morning, "when Loorz paid money to Nedderman more definitely than this 'on or about' the 15th of May nor where he paid it to him. The latter point the prosecution found it impossible to establish. The former point similarly eluded them. I charge my neighbor with a crime, but I can neither tell where he committed it nor when. Shall he be convicted on such testimony from me? Should he even be tried upon such testimony?"

Continuation of Crosby's argument opened the afternoon session of the court.

CROSBY'S ADDRESS
ELOQUENT APPEAL.

Instructions which both sides ask be presented to the jury by the court have been presented to Judge Quinn. Those of the prosecution were in his hands yesterday afternoon. Crosby presented his this morning. To a considerable extent both sets adhere to the usual formalisms, but it was intimated that some departures therefrom were also sought by both sides.

The outburst of Mrs. Nedderman, the wife of the defendant, in the afternoon session yesterday, the most dramatic event of the whole trial was not altogether unexpected by those who had noted her demeanor during the day. Mrs. Nedderman has been at her husband's side almost since the trial started, and the last two or three days had apparently sat upon her feet, silent and motionless, as in her earlier statement, was the most difficult portion of the whole strain she had undergone.

Mrs. Nedderman was led from the courtroom at the mid-afternoon recess by a friend to the steps of the courthouse where she stood weeping silently for some minutes. Her Nedderman joined her and attempted to comfort her, but her eyes were still suffused with tears when she returned to Judge Quinn's court.

The most earnest portion of Witschen's address was to follow. He took up Nedderman's recent testimony of the Chinatown graft which he said Captain Charles H. Bock proposed to him. Witschen read the words attributed by Nedderman to Bock, then the reply Nedderman had made:

"Captain Bock, I was brought up in this city, my family reside here, my son will come back from the war to live here and I want to go on living in this community. I will have nothing to do with any such a scheme."

When Nedderman faced the jury again,

"Can you imagine this man making such a statement?" he demanded. "Can you not see behind these words the effort to impress you, to show you how honest he is? Can you not see the whole effect this speech was expected to have, brought in as it was at the very end of the trial and not in its logical place? Can you think of the man who has helped and dodged questions here, talking that way to Captain Bock?"

Mrs. Nedderman had sat silent to this point, though she was leaning half way out of her chair, her eyes snapping and her hands nervously beating one against the other. At Witschen's last words she jumped to her feet.

"Well, he did talk that way!" she cried.

The eyes of everyone in the court were upon her. Witschen paused in his address. Bulif Al Smith moved toward her.

"He told me when it happened. He told it to me just that way."

Here Smith reached her and attempted to calm her, as did also her companion.

"Oh, I know, I know," she sobbed, "but it's hard to listen to it when it is not true. It is too true to listen to it when it is not true."

He told me when it happened. He told it to me just that way."

U.S. TO GRANT DEMANDS WHEN STRIKE ENDS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Advices from Washington today indicate that the International officers in conference with Postmaster General Burleson in an effort to settle the Pacific Coast telephone strike had reached an understanding with the federal director of telephones that he would grant the retroactive pay demand after the strikers had returned to work.

International Vice President L. C. Grasser had no communication from his Washington representative but said he would call immediately when such orders were received, a meeting of delegates representing striking menmen and operators to determine the acceptability of this proposition and to take up a binding vote.

The principal stumbling block in the settlement of the strike has been the deadlock over the retroactive pay demand as of January 1 last beginning paid before or after the strikers returned to work. The operators and linemen have been firm in demanding that they be guaranteed the back pay before returning to work. Burleson, through his representative, General Superintendent D. P. Fulton of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph, has refused to consider any demand for retroactive pay until after the workers had returned. The Washington advises that a settlement has or will shortly be made on the mooted point.

Officials of the traffic department of the telephone company who have charge of the employment of strike-breakers to fill vacancies created by the walkout of June 16, reported to the traffic headquarters of various cities in this state, Washington, Oregon and Idaho that many of the striking operators were returning.

Witschen began the address to the jury with a statement to the industry of opposing counsel that a review of the occasions on which Loorz had claimed he paid money to Nedderman. The first two of these times Witschen characterized as payments to Nedderman's private account; these being of $200. He mentioned Loorz's refusal to "do business with Cockrell" and continued that when the chief forgot the prudent plan which had been adopted of having a buffer collect the money and, acting for the coin, decided to collect it himself.

Witschen characterized the testimony of Nedderman on the stand as too "glub, studied and smooth." He declared that no raid on the Bartenders' Club was made except that Captain Thomas Brown was transferred to the Hemphill to the Melrose district following Hemphill's raid of the Jui Moy's establishment as a comparable incident. Regarding the Chinese places and their apparent increase in numbers, he said:

"The more protection money the Chinese paid the less they were interrupted, the better was their business and the more houses, as a natural result, did they build."

Witschen worked up to a climax in his statement when he spoke of the final cessation of payments by the gamblers, which he dated at the end of last year. He said in substance,

"Then Cockrell quit coming, Captain Jackson was transferred to another department and Commissioner Morgan was put in his place at the head of the department to put his health and safety. The antecedents of this change are before you. You will remember that Captain Brown is stated to have gone to Geum Kee and demanded $100 a month for each house and four months in advance and that Cockrell is said to have appeared soon afterward to collect on this arrangement."

"With Morse moving out and the game apparatus removed, the Chinese knew they evidently thought they could make one last clean sweep. So they appeared with this demand, this demand for ten times as much as they had ever got in a single collection before. But the tribute was more than the traffic would bear. The Chinese quit and quit cold."

The officers to be installed tonight are: Past president, F. Klingman; president, A. F. Sousa Jr.; first vice-president, F. J. Ralph Jr.; second vice-president, George W. Leydecker; third vice-president, C. C. Leydecker; financial secretary, Charles R. Gee; recording secretary, Charles Bradle; treasurer, Louis Durell; director, F. E. Fisher; trustees, A. A. Brule, A. V. Fisher, H. L. Sousa; inside sentinel, J. W. Byrnes; outside sentinel, A. Weise.

Sacramento Man Says Improvement on Tanlak Was Wonderful

"Every time I meet any of my friends now they have something to say about how well I am looking of late, and it just does my heart good to tell them how completely Tanlak has overcome my tuberculosis," said J. C. Turner, who lives 1400 O street, Sacramento, the other day.

"My kidneys went back on me about a year ago and continued to do so whenever I have been traveling and treatment ever since, gradually got worse right along; until I got hold of this Tanlak. For the past few months, my kidney trouble has been much better, and has been quite cured. The last time I was in Sacramento, it never even was strong enough to give me a dull heavy pain in the small of my back all the time. I had no appetite to speak of and when did get a little hunger, it was occasionally. Now, eating more, I work two and two that would satisfy me. I work at night and often when I would finish my work I would be so completely worn out and so weak that I could hardly stand than a couple of hours during the day. I was badly constipated all the time and suffered a lot from headaches."

I heard about this Tanlak and made up my mind to try it out, and it certainly has done the work for me. Why, I honestly never felt better in all my life than I do now. Now, however, my kidney trouble has come back to me again, though not as bad as those of the past, and my nerves are in such good condition that I sleep like a log from the time I go to bed until time for me to get up and go to work. I have such a good appetite that I just want to eat all the time nearly, and my food is agreeing with me fine. I have been extensively touring and the Philippines on route home. They will be away for several months, and will start the latter part of next month.

Another family preparing to leave for the Orient are the Charles D. Willits who are ready to return from the southern part of the state.

Miss Ethel Handley of Piedmont is to sail July 22 for Honolulu to spend a year in the islands.

Joining at Lake Tahoe together are Miss Elsa Schilling and Miss Johanna Volkmann. They expect to be away about a year.

Leave for Sojourn AT SANTA BARBARA.

Mrs. A. E. Corder of 350 Lenox avenue, with her children and nurse have gone for a month's trip to Santa Barbara, and will continue their journey to Los Angeles and San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Edward Gaines are returning from their honeymoon trip and are now domiciled in apartments across the bar. The bride was Miss Amy Corder, daughter of Thomas W. Corder. The family home is one of the beautiful places about the bay.

After a pleasant stay at Del Monte and Carmel-by-the-Sea, Mr. and Mrs. Guyon W. Coryell and their daughter, June Althea, have returned to their apartments at the Hotel Oakland.

WEDDING SURPRISE IN MUSICAL CIRCLE.

At an informal wedding ceremony at 5:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in the apartments of the bride, Miss Barbara Miller became the wife of Eugene Blanchard, choir director of the First Congregational church in this city. No announcement of the betrothal of the couple had been made known and the announcement was a surprise to a large number of friends about the bay.

Both are well-known musicians in the bay region, the bride being a member of St. Mark's choir in Berkeley. On his way home Robertson spent some time at his boyhood home in Scotland.

Robertson will speak before the Oakland Rotary Club at the regular luncheon Thursday, July 17th.

Living Cost Too High; Returns to Chain Gang

Because he was hungry and had no money to buy food, Manuel Repposa, who escaped Monday from the city chain gang at the dumps, gave himself up yesterday at the City Hall.

"Polly," as he is popularly known among chain gang members for whom he cooked, said he had two dollars when he escaped. This vanished quickly.

"It's the high cost of living that brought me back," said he. "I can at least get 'three hots' in the jail regularly."

Pioneer's Funeral Was Held Today

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen A. Watkins, one of the pioneers of California, who died at the home of her son, Carl Taylor, 2002 Filbert street, Oakland, was held today from the home of the deceased at Colverle, Mono county. Mrs. Watkins was 80 years old and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Emma Taylor and Mrs. Florence Shifield and a son, Channing Crapster, all residing in Oakland.

The bride were a gown of imported lace made over white silk, and wore a wreath of orange blossoms and violets. She carried a slender bouquet of bride's roses and maidenhair fern.

The future home of the couple will be in Pittsburgh, where the bridegroom is connected with a large lumber concern.

OPEN COUNTRY HOME IN THE SIERRAS.

The Edward Marion Walshes have opened "The Cedars," their country place near Truckee, and will be joined throughout the summer by different members of their family.

Dr. and Mrs. John Louis Lohse will be their guests for a time as will Mr. and Mrs. Jack Okell (Harriet Walsh) Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Walsh and their children are to remain in the high Sierras for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hogan, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. John Richard Cook, will leave Saturday on a motor trip to Lake Tahoe. They will spend several days at Faho Tavern, Young Harold Hogan, who has been a student at Annapolis, is expected home in September.

Largest Phone Motor Tested in London

London, July 16.—The biggest airplane engine in the world has just been put into its first flight. It is of the Sunbeam Works here. It is of nominal h.p. developing about 600 h.p. at normal working speed. It was not run at full power on the first trial, and is now being dismantled for examination, after which it is to be re-erected for a full power test.

The engine has twelve cylinders arranged V fashion, and weighs less than two pounds per horsepower. Special aeroplane parts are to be built to suit the engine, while it is also probable that it will be fitted to some of the larger giant airships. The biggest aero engine previously made was an Italian production.

Many Journey To and From The Far East

Contemplating their return to the United States after an absence of nearly five years in the Far East, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hale expect to arrive here in August to visit with relatives and friends. The last two years the family was in Calcutta, India, where they went spending some time in China.

Mrs. Hale will be remembered as Miss Ethel Smith and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Shreve of Fresno, former residents of this city. Their wedding was the outcome of a romance which had its origin when both were students at the University of California. It is probable that Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hale will occupy an attractive home in Berkeley, their place of residence before they left for the Orient. Mrs. Hale was a member of the Chi Omega sorority at college, and will be welcomed by a wide circle of friends and sorority sisters.

While those who have been sojourning abroad are daily expected home, many others will fill their places, judging by the passenger lists of the big steamship lines.

LIVING COST PROBES TO BE STARTED SOON

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Living costs presented a question second only to the peace treaty in the interests of the senate today.

Senator Gronna plans an exhaustive hearing on two bills designed for control of the packing industry, which he believes will show interesting facts concerning high food costs.

Senator Sherman of Illinois was today completing plans for an investigation of living costs in the District of Columbia.

State Capital of Kansas has indicated he will strive to show in the investigation some of the causes which are keeping food costs above normal.

Such great pressure was being brought to bear for the lowering of living costs that it was predicted today by party leaders that some action would be taken which would at least be an attempt at relief, as soon as the peace treaty has been disposed of.

CLAIMS HUSBAND THREATENED HER

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Harry Goldman was booked at the city prison on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder, made by his wife, Minnie Goldman, 2571 San Bruno avenue, this morning. According to the story told by Mrs. Goldman at the Park station, she was separated from her husband and was living with her mother, Mrs. Minnie Subliski.

Goldman came to the house last night and begged her to return to him. When she refused, she says, he pulled a revolver, placed it at her head and said he was going to kill her. Mrs. Subliski grappled with him and finally wrested the gun from his hand, but not before he had

EQUALITY FOR WOMEN AIM IN BUSINESS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 16.—Legislation to secure equality for women will be the aim of the prospective Federation of Business and Women's clubs.

The new organization, representing the Women's Association of Commerce of the United States, Women's Business committee, Alameda Women's association, will fight for more working conditions and other laws placing women on the same basis as men.

State laws relative to women property holders and other discriminations will receive the organization's attention.

UNREQUITED LOVE TALE TOLD

SAN FRANCISCO NEWS

NURSE'S DEATH IS UNSOLVED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Efforts are being made by the coroner's office to define exactly the cause of Miss Ethel Johnson's death, which occurred yesterday afternoon in the office of Dr. James Watkins, Medical building, where the young woman was employed as nurse. Miss Johnson, treating G. Culic, a patient, at the time, reached up to grasp a switch of an electrical machine. As she turned it on, according to Culic, she gasped sharply, turned half way around as if for aid and fell despite the patient's efforts to save her.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE NEAR PARK ENTRANCE.

Culic, about to undergo an electrical treatment, jumped from the chair, according to the statement, and caught the young woman, dragging her away from the switch. It was too late, however.

Dr. C. A. Walker, who was summoned by the patient, pronounced her dead after an effort to resuscitate her. Dr. Watkins, who was absent at the time, made an examination of the electrical switch and apparatus on his return and pronounced it in good working order.

It was known that the young woman was in poor health and under medical care. This, according to physicians, may have lowered her resistance to the electrical shock. Miss Johnson was a graduate of the San Francisco County Hospital. She was 25 years old.

HYSTERIA, NOT POISON, WAS WOMAN'S ALIMENT.

That Mrs. Isobel Soder, a widow, did not take poison after all—as she had announced early in the day to F. G. King, mining engineer, in his Mill Building office—became known this morning following an examination by Dr. T. W. Huntington and central emergency hospital physicians. The medical men say that she was the victim of hysteria. Mrs. Soder appeared in the office of King, an old family friend, with an empty vial in her hand, and announced hysterically that she had taken poison.

A man who immediately called Dr. Huntington, who often were in the same building, and at his direction she was hurried to the hospital. The woman is resting today in the home of friends.

UNREQUITED LOVE IS THEORY OF SUICIDE.

Widow accused of suicide of beautiful Hazel Eleanor Hallahan, whose body was found Monday in the Marin hills near Fairfax? A coroner's jury has pronounced the girl's death a result of one self-inflicted gun shot wound. Coroner F. E. Sawyer and Sheriff J. J. Keating of Marin county held to the same belief—that the girl in melancholy fit of depression walked alone in the hills and shot herself. As yet, no complete or half-way explanation of her action has come to light.

That the girl might have worried herself into suicide over unrequited love is the belief expressed by Mrs. Ernest Claxton, owner of a soft drink stand near the hills and the last person, it is believed, to see the girl alive. According to her testimony at the coroner's investigation, for many weeks before the suicide Miss Hallahan and an unidentified soldier came to the stand and drank each a glass of milk before walking into the hills. The walks continued for some time every weekend finding the girl and boy at the stand until Mrs. Claxton began calling them "her boy and girl." Both seemed very happy.

Three weeks after their last walk into the hills, on the evening of July 3 or 4, according to the testimony of the soft-drink dispenser, Miss Hallahan appeared at the stand, drank three lemonades and walked into the hills. She was last seen alive. She was much depressed and her melancholy was evident according to the testimony.

J. P. Smith, 421 O'Farrell street, a friend of the Hallahan family, had the girl's body brought to this city. He is awaiting word from Dennis Hallahan of Los Angeles, father to the dead girl.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE NEAR PARK ENTRANCE.

Fighting a doubtful battle for his life at the Park Emergency hospital today is Frank Armstrong, a weigher, who shot himself through the temple at the Waller street entrance to Golden Gate park in fit of mental depression. The shot was fired yesterday afternoon and was heard by Detectives Thomas Stanton and Thomas Daly, who were leaving the Park police station at the time. The officials rushed to the assistance of Armstrong. In the man's pocket was found a note to the coroner which tells of his intention to commit suicide.

SECOND STREET CAR BANDIT CONVICTED.

Awaiting sentence today in the city prison on a conviction of manslaughter is Harold Zocchi, Municipal street car man, who went to trial for his connection with the death of Albert G. Sonner, conductor. A jury in Judge Michael Roche's court agreed to the verdict last night after many hours' deliberation. Sonner was shot on the night of February 13 when Zocchi and Joseph Kiernan held up a Haight-street car near the beach. While Zocchi struggled with L. C. Philomena, the motorcyclist, according to his testimony, Kiernan shot Sonner. Kiernan was sentenced to life imprisonment.

FORMER ALAMEDA CHURCHMAN DEAD.

Bay city commercial and church circles today mourned the death in Hawaii of Elmer J. Walker, grain broker and for many years a prominent member of the Alameda Congregational church. Walker died at Hamakaua, Hawaii. He removed to the islands from this region in 1901.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Robert E. Hughes and Miss Annie E. Walker, who served as a stewardess in the Navy, and five sons. All of the sons served their country during the war. They are Captain Ralph P. Walker, U. S. A.; Captain Ward Dickerson Walker, U. S. A.; Sanford D. Walker, John D. Walker and Walter J. Walker.

PRES. WHEELER RETIRES; WILL TAKE VACATION

"More Food or Fewer Children"
Living Must Fall, Says Woman

BERKELEY, July 16.—Women will refuse to bring children into the world unless there is a reduction in the cost of living," said Mrs. W. T. Cleverdon in an address before the Berkeley Defense Corps.

Her talk was in line with that of Arthur L. Street, journalist, who spoke on "Packers and How to Deal With Them."

After his speech the Defense Corps organized a committee to take up an once the organization of facilities to publish broadcast the alleged evils of the packers.

It was agreed that representatives of the packers publicly denounce all the produce exchanges, fixing the speculative price of butter, eggs and other dairy and poultry products.

"By the proper organization of public information, this problem can be met," said Street. "The public must have better facilities for information than the packers."

John Stewart was named by President Cleverdon to head the investigating committee, to confer with Street and work out a practical plan.

Mrs. Cleverdon scored Governor Stephens for not signing the Scott ash market bill. "Unless relief is secured from the awful grip of the high cost of living so that parents can feel assured that they will be able to supply sufficient nutriment to properly rear their children, loving mothers will in the very near future reluctantly refuse to permit the sacred duty of the care of their children, taking upon themselves the responsibility of bringing into the world children "who must necessarily suffer from mal-nutrition," she declared.

BERKELEY, July 16.—This last act the sending of a telegram to President Wilson, inviting him to speak at the Greek theater on the campus on his forthcoming visit, Benjamin Ide Wheeler retired yesterday as president of the University of California.

He served within three days of twenty years and his return came on his 65th birthday, in conformity with a decision reached id

Dr. Wheeler will take a six month's vacation and then will return to become president emeritus and professor of comparative philology. He and his wife soon will vacate the president's house on the campus and move into a home recently purchased near the head of Ridge road.

The telegram to President Wilson follows:

"On behalf of the University of California and in all cordiality I urge that on your approaching visit to the State you may accept the hospitalities of the university and address the members of the university and the citizens of Berkeley as you did eight years ago. Our gates will swing wide open to you."

Another Boy Shot With 'Unloaded' Gun

ALAMEDA, July 16.—George Harris, a Berkeley boy, 11 years of age, living at 516 Indian Rock avenue, was accidentally shot in the right hip yesterday afternoon while playing with a gun.

Pauline, Pauline, and were playing with a .22 caliber revolver at the Lure home, 1106 Santa Clara avenue. The boys believed the revolver to be unloaded. While the weapon was in Pauline's hands it was unexpectedly discharged. The wounded boy was taken to the Emergency hospital by William Morrison and attended by Dr. H. F. Crum.

The wound was found not to be serious, the bullet embedding in the leg bone and being deflected. The boy was taken to a doctor for further treatment from where he entered. The wounded boy was taken to his home in Berkeley after being treated at the hospital.

Auto Hits Boys in Grass Fire Smoke

BERKELEY, July 15.—Two Berkeley boys, struck by lightning, are at the Roosevelt hospital today. During a fire smoke from a grass fire, Miss

E. T. White of 1301 Josephine street, ran over James Miller, age 10, of 123 Grove street. The boy suffered a broken shoulder. He had been watching the fire and according to police report, backed into the way of the automobile.

Laurie O'Fallon, age 11, a newsboy, living at 2011 North street, was bruised severely when his bicycle hit the post-pal but did not give his name. The license number on the machine is registered for G. L. Lobb, 1037 5th street, the police reported.

BIG SHIPYARD PLANS DOCKS, GETS PERMIT

ALAMEDA, July 16.—The Moore Shipbuilding company was granted permission by the city council last night to run dredged material into the setting basin on the naval base site, providing the company posted the required bond and paid the $1,800 foot sum in the south dyke. The company is prepared to do this.

About 400,000 cubic yards of heavy fill will be excavated at the Moore plant, pumped across Oakland harbor through a pipe line and run into the setting basin. In case the government takes the property for a naval base site, it will be paid back to the government before the reclamation. Edward Shattock, for the Moore company said that $2,500,000 had been appropriated for the dredging and the construction of a huge drydock and two floating docks.

MAY BUILD NAVAL DOCK.

The Moore company may also later build a big naval dock if the naval base is not located immediately in the government and a naval dock is needed for the same.

A. T. Spratt of Neptune beach, George Masters of the Sunn Cove baths and Harry Schlichting of the Alameda Improvement club were present to guard the interests of the Alameda beaches, but were apparently satisfied that the plan proposed would give the beaches due protection from debris run into the setting basin and which might later escape into the open bay. The engineers said that closing the south side of the basin completely would be the only possible floatage to wash out into the open bay on the ebb tide.

TO MOVE POLE LINE

The Southern Pacific company notified the council it had finally secured the last bit of right-of-way for the removal of the pole line on West Lincoln avenue and would soon have the high potential line which supplies the Alameda electric loop with current moved to the northward along the marsh line. It is considered that the line was constructed in a temporary manner, its removal being contemplated several years ago.

The cross-town cars were ordered to stop at Eighth and Central, when bound from Oakland, to guard against collision with autos on Central avenue. The cars swing around a curve at this point.

The council adjourned to meet as a committee of the next week Tuesday night.

The police pawnshop detail, the city council today refused a second-hand clothes dealer's license to Hyman Broder. The policeman said that he was a nephew of Jacob Schiffman, whose license was recently revoked and who made charges against Captain James T. Drew which were dismissed. They claimed that the licensee was a subterfuge for Schiffman to resume business.

Only One Injured in Two Auto Collisions

J. K. Kennedy of Fresno had a narrow escape from serious injury last night, as his auto collided with a machine driven by W. J. Schurid, 532 Wood street. He was treated at the emergency hospital for a fracture of the left arm and deep laceration on the left shoulder.

Two heavy trucks collided with great force at Forty-fifth and Telegraph avenue, although neither driver was injured, last night. The machines were driven by G. Murphy, Athens hotel of the Ariss Contracting Co., and C. Bryson, 843 Union street of Kohler & Chase Co.

Tell Jane

To J. O. B.
HOMELAND
Jim, I wish you would tell Jane a couple of little things for me; which leads me to remark that there are so many little things in life that, all together, they've got the big ones beaten in point of importance.

When you buy a new book it has on it what is called a "jacket." As you know, it is the printed cover the publishers have put there to keep the book clean while it is being exposed for sale. Now this jacket often has a description of the book, and perhaps a colored picture that is not on the inside of the book itself. I want you to tell Jane, when she buys a new book to take her shears and trim the first page of the jacket so it will be small enough to lie in the book without sticking out. That gives her the very neatest kind of a bookmark imaginable—not something dragged in merely to "keep the place," but a part of the book itself, and something that adds to the book's value and the pleasure of reading it.

Then take the Sunday newspaper. It comes folded so large that the different sections are hard to handle. First you pull one of them out and look at it, then another, and soon the whole bunch of them are all over the place and sliding off the tables and chairs. So tell Jane, when the Sunday paper comes, to separate the sections and fold them once again in the middle and PILE THEM UP. They will then be like a low stack of books 12 by 9 inches in size, easy to read, handle, and keep in order. It only takes one minute to separate the sections and fold them in this way, and it pays. Tell Jane to try it.

Uncle Wiggly And Reader Of Sammie

By Howard R. Garis.
"Uncle Wiggly, will you have time to take Baby Bunty to school in your auto this morning?" asked Mrs. Jane Fuzz-Wuzzy and bright one day.

"Why, of course," answered the rabbit gentleman. "And I hope this time, Baby Bunty, we don't have a puncture in one of our tires, and have to blow the tire back head over heels with the air pump."

"I hope so, too," said Baby Bunty, with a laugh, as she thought of the time she had to wait the day before when she and Uncle Wiggly went after some pickling sugar.

Soon the little rabbit girl had her pink nose and ears and her sky-blue-pink-green hair ribbon around her ears she hopped into Uncle Wiggly's auto and soon she was being ridden in his way, selected by him, and not taking time for her to get there, and in the yard she saw many of the animal boys and girls. Susie Littletail, another little bunny girl, was hopping up and down, real excited like.

"What's the matter, Susie?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Oh, I'm so afraid my brother Sammie will be late!" said Susie. "It is almost time for the last bell to ring, and he isn't here yet. He didn't come with me as he couldn't find his reading book, and he hasn't come to get him speak a piece this afternoon, and it's Friday, which is piece-speaking day."

Chattered Billie Bushytail the squirrel. "I wish I could come late on Fridays, so I wouldn't have to speak a piece. I hate 'em!"

"Well, if it's Friday, and if Sammie is late, I'll speak for him," said Uncle Wiggly.

"Oh, could you go back and get him in your auto?" asked Susie, anxious like.

"Why, of course, I could!" cried jolly Uncle Wiggly, and his pink nose twinkled just like a wart on a pickle.

So back he started through the woods. The rabbit gentleman had not ridden very far under the shade trees before he saw Sammie Littletail, the rabbit boy, hopping slowly along. Sammie had a book in his hand, but he was looking very happy.

"Hello, Sammie! Hop in and I'll ride you to school before the last bell rings," said Uncle Wiggly.

"Thank you—for the ride you're going to give me," spoke the rabbit boy.

"But, really, I don't much care whether I get to school today or not."

"Why, Sammie!" cried Uncle Wiggly. "I'm a reader now, and if you afraid your teacher will make you speak a piece this Friday afternoon?"

"I know she'll make me speak a piece all right," said Uncle Wiggly.

"I need not fear nor mind the many doubts,

Let me be true to what I know is good.

I need not fear nor mind the many doubts,

Let me be true to what I know is right.

Away with doubts of what is false or true.

Of caviling o'er things not understood,

Tomorrow may rebuild our dreams anew,

But I must live to what I know is good.

Mourned for Dead;

Returns Home Rich.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 14.—Forty years from home, James Laswell was mourned for dead. He returned a few days ago to visit his relatives whom he believed had died. At the age of seventeen years he pilgrimized west. Absorbed in a business career he lost track of his brothers, sisters and parents here. Efforts of all to communicate proved fruitless, so he left home, he came back here more to visit his boyhood surroundings than anything else and was surprised to find relatives still living in Springfield.

THE MOVIE STAR

By Juanita Hamel

There's something about that spotlight of life we call the screen—the lit of its stories, perhaps the lure of its romances—that focuses on those who flit through its scenes an attention that enthralls mere mortals. A movie STAR—just think what it means to these two men to MEET her, to least their eyes upon her in the flesh, to talk—to try to talk with her! It's terribly hard to know just what to say and what NOT to say—especially the adoring words they've spoken in their hearts to her PICTURE.

Clara Morris HAS THIS TO SAY-

Dear me!—in the Miss Edgeworth style— I'm all in a flutter. I do protest. That I, who have lost, and lost should make, if really one—is excuse enough for said "fluttering."

This is all things come to those who wait, and having waited for an answer to one Shakespearean question, since I was fifteen—a goodish while, my masters—I really feel the cake for waiting should be pushed over toward me, even though may not be needed, to take it. And now that those who still go for Shakespeare, to those who regret that, dramatically speaking, he is no longer our daily bread, to those who used to be deeply interested in "readings" and meanings, and the real or pretended insanity of Hamlet, I tell the story of my mind, and they perhaps will honor me by deciding whether I have stumbled upon a real discovery or a perfectly iridescent mare's nest.

The first time I ever saw the tragedy of Hamlet, I rended valuable seat to the "extra edition of the court pages, messengers, soldiers, etc." line of endeavor. But no sooner had the last curtain fallen and the dead scrambled to their feet, than I was at the side of Queen Gertrude, with such fell purpose in my eye that she flung up her hands, crying:

"Oh, you interrogation point, what is this time?"

And eagerly I demanded: "Please, Mrs. Bradshaw, what does Ophelia mean, when in the mad scene she says to the Queen, 'You may wear your ruff with a difference?'

She shrank slightly for a moment, slowly, word by word, said:

"My girl, if I could answer that question, grateful Shakespearean scholars would bind my brows with the olive leaves of Minerva. No, I do not know what she means."

This was the beginning of a long, long quest. As time went by I was called upon to play the player Queen, Ostric, Guidenstein, Ophelia. At seventeen, because of an accident, I had to leave the happy home of playing cards at Queen Gertrude. Edwin Booth, America's greatest Hamlet, All through all those years I cross-examined actresses, actors, public readers of Shakespeare, students or just plain lovers of divine Will's plays, asking, asking: "How do you construe the line, 'You may wear your ruff with a difference?'" My father gave a jump.

Yesterdays there was rain, there was began to read out loud the lesson in Sammie's book. It went this way:

"And then the brave hunter suddenly caught up his gun and he had six shots. Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!"

The back of my mind something moved faintly, then as if by outside command I said aloud: "You may wear your ruff with a difference."

My father gave a jump.

Back I turned the leaves, to read that in ancient times the word "difference" frequently took the place of "mark of cadency."

Now, recall that in "Hamlet" Queen Gertrude has just married the dead King's younger brother—a downward step of a certainty. And younger sons were, or rather, a label of nobility, as a mark of cadency, a difference consisting of a piece of silk or cloth, bearing "a mullet"—five-pointed star—a crescent—rose—fleur-de-lis, or so on up to nine labels.

So here we simply find Ophelia speaking in terms of heraldry—completely understood at that time—and indulging a little feminine malice in reminding the Queen, that as a member now of the younger branch of the royal family, she could wear her ruff "with a difference."

There—the evidence is all in! A jury of Shakespeare lovers must decide. Is this a find—or a mare's nest and moonshine? Anyway, I had a glorious browse.

ROME, July 16.—Nero's shade was up and about yesterday. He caused a lot of neighborhood gossip. The reason for his return is said to have been the news that other folks planned to burn Rome. He desired to consult a lawyer, claiming to have a copyright on the idea. He also asked permission to present evidence that he showed more to better than the Bolsheviks could get up. If the radicals insisted on burning the city, Nero said that he'd like to know who was going to play the fiduciary and who would pay the fiduciary?

THE FOLLOWING LOTION IS ALSO ADAPTED TO OIL SKINS, AND A SPOONFUL OF IT SOFTENS A BASIN OF WATER AND MAKES A PLEASANT BATH FOR ANY ONE:

Tincture of benzoin... 3 ounce

Tincture of ambergris... 4 drams

Rectified spirits... 6 ounces

Orange flower water... 1/2 pints

The following lotion is a saponaceous paste, found ready prepared at most chemists. Dissolve the borax in the orange flower water, slightly warmed, combine the wax, spermaceti, oil of benzine and shaving cream in a double boiler, at gentle heat, then stir in the prepared water and almonds.

Add the tinctures to the spirits, then combine with the perfumed water. This is cooling and refreshing to the skin, acting as a tonic and is efficacious in removing tan and freckles. If the perfumes are of the best and purest quality the result will be quite a spell, an' when I did wake up in 'em gag was gone an' so was in mind. Then I untied Pete an' come up.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1919.

A BELATED EXPOSURE.

Members of the United States Senate yesterday pretended to have made a monumental discovery when they introduced the diplomatic notes by which France, Great Britain and Italy, early in 1917, agreed to support at the peace conference Japan's claims for advantages in the Far East. They introduced the matter with all the eclat of triumphant sleuths in a hunt for the family jewels.

Yet all the details of the secret understandings between the four countries mentioned above that were given in the Senate yesterday were given in these columns of THE TRIBUNE on May 16th, just two months ago. Additional and amplifying facts were contained in the statement of Hon. Edward T. Williams, adviser on Far Eastern affairs, to the American peace delegation, published exclusively in THE TRIBUNE June 10th.

THE TRIBUNE pointed out two months ago that these agreements were sought by Japan after it became inevitable that the United States and China would enter the war and with a view to making it difficult if not impossible for the Americans at the peace table to force the relinquishment by Japan of the advantages she had already seized. The case is simple and easily understood. There is no mystery about it. It is an ordinary act of old school diplomacy with a dash of Oriental trickery.

Specifically, the agreements provided that France, Great Britain and Italy would support the request of Japan that she be made the successor to German concessions in the leased territory of Kiaochow in China. There was no strong reason why the agreements should not have been made before the United States and China entered the war on the side of the Allies. They covered rights and sovereign privileges which China had voluntarily granted to Germany twenty years before, and of which Japan had become the custodian by virtue of having taken a major part in dislodging the Germans from the China coast.

Japan had promised to return the leased territory to China after the close of the war. In seeking and concluding the agreements with the European powers she was preparing to repudiate her promise and commit a gigantic lie.

After China and this country became belligerents the situation ought to have been changed. The American contention was that Kiaochow, which is a small section of Shantung province, should be returned to China. China demanded that this be done and has refused to sign the peace treaty until her demand is complied with. But Japan and the European Allies stood on the agreements and they prevailed.

This is the whole story, so ugly and unsatisfactory that no exaggeration is called for. But China's case is not as spotless as some of her champions in this country would make it appear. She gave the Kiaochow concessions to Germany as the easiest settlement of outrages she had committed against foreigners. She gave under compulsion, it is true, but reparation is rarely made under any other incentive.

Kiaochow was a military and naval outpost of Germany in the Pacific and it was properly seized by Germany's adversaries. Since then it is claimed China has entered into agreements recognizing the transfer of German rights to Japan. She claims that these agreements were forced upon her. But that is her usual claim.

According to all appearances, China was abandoned at the peace table by her trusted friend, the United States. But it may be that no other settlement was possible in Paris and that another way to resolve the problem in accordance with international justice and morality may be found. In any event, it must be remembered that agreements are made to be kept, and no nation can hope to break them at will. The fact that "secret" treaties have been stigmatized as objectionable does not invalidate them.

AUTO FERRIES NEEDED.

That there is a pressing need for additional ferry facilities for transporting automobiles across the water between points in the bay district is obvious. Sunday and holiday motor traffic suffers particularly hard from the inadequate accommodations. Motorists returning to Alameda county by way of Marin and Contra Costa counties on holidays have been obliged to wait practically all night before they could get ferry service at the northern shores. The conditions existing between the Eastbay cities and San Francisco is well known to every automobile owner who has taken his machine across the bay.

The increased demand for automobile ferry service is permanent. There are more automobiles in use than ever before and the people are making a wider use of them for business and recreation. Alameda city is requesting an auto ferry; more ample service between Oakland and San Francisco is required; there should be better accommodations between Oakland, Richmond and Marin county; between Contra Costa and Solano counties.

Any handicap upon communication among the cities and counties that comprise the bay district is harmful and should not be tolerated any longer than is possible to obtain alleviation. The business and development of the district is being held back. Improvement of the situation is an urgent necessity.

Unfortunately or not, the major portion of existing ferry accommodations are controlled by railroad transportation companies. These companies are not friendly toward the automobile, an attitude for which they may be pardoned. But unfriendly sentiment is all that the public should be asked to tolerate; it should not be obliged to suffer from unfriendly tactics designed to discourage the use of the automobile.

RESERVATIONS OF LAW.

Former President Taft is a distinguished authority on American constitutional law and on international law. His reputation as an American statesman rests largely upon his knowledge of and experience in administering law, both in the United States and in our foreign protectorates. His reputation as an authority in jurisprudence has saved him from the oblivion that might otherwise have followed his political defeats.

It is to be assumed, therefore, that Mr. Taft does not lightly venture to cast his high and chief claim to recognition into support of the League of Nations covenant. Yet he does definitely and unreservedly stake his reputation as a lawyer in answering the objectors to the covenant with reference to the immigration and tariff questions.

International law, the preservation of which is a principal object of the League of Nations, specifically reserves to each individual nation, says Mr. Taft, absolute and exclusive control over these matters. In support of his contention he cites the case of Nishimura Ekin vs. the United States, in which the question was whether a Japanese woman could be deported from the United States under an act of Congress. Mr. Justice Gary, delivering the opinion of the court, said:

"It is an accepted maxim of international law that every sovereign nation has the power as is inherent in sovereignty and essential to self-preservation to forbid the entrance of foreigners within its dominions, or to admit them only in such cases and upon such conditions as it may see fit to prescribe."

The court cited the supporting authority of Vatel and Phillimore. Mr. Taft says there is just as strong authority for applying the same rule to the admission of merchandise. Import duties are just as completely within the sovereign jurisdiction of the country into which the goods are introduced. "To hold otherwise would be to take away the independence of the nation."

These are, indeed, accepted maxims of international law. But they are something more; they are matters the control of which has been delegated to Congress by the Constitution. They are among the legislative powers and duties of Congress—both houses sharing equally—which the treaty-making authorities cannot invade.

The question is not whether these powers are inherent in American sovereignty, or whether the executive branch of the government has any authority to surrender or abridge them, or whether such attempts of the executive would be effective. It is whether the League of Nations covenant is so worded as not to cause any embarrassment or raise any obstacles in the exercise of these powers and rights. There cannot be too much clarity in this connection. There ought to be no ground and no necessity for raising maxims of existing international law or the constitutional guarantees of individual states to combat presumptions of the newest document of international law—the covenant of the League of Nations.

Against the complaint of our business men, that through auto travel has fallen off this season, and the suggestion that it is going by the coast route because of the activity of motorcycle cops in Tulare and Madera counties, the cause may or may not be traced to the cops; but while speed laws ought to be enforced, the matter is grave enough to attract the attention of the civic bodies. If it is true that drivers have been "pinched" for traveling at a 31-mile pace, there is need of investigation and action. No community can afford to unnecessarily annoy auto tourists.—Bakersfield California.

Following the closing of thirty-four saloons in Redding the city jail was empty for the first time in the history of the town. The loss of this jail business is expected to ruin Redding.—Red Bluff News.

Is there any real danger that all the members of the Council of the League of Nations would deliberately fly in the face of accepted international law on this subject?

NOTES AND COMMENT

Congress is to investigate the high cost of living. The Congressional investigation does not always have definite outcome, but there is such abundant opportunity here to probe food prices which so persistently remain at war altitudes that there may be hope that the public will be at least informed, if the conditions are not ameliorated.

The allies are not going to engage in controversy with Holland over the custody of the Kaiser, but are to require Germany to act as intermediary to convey the information to that nation that the presence of the arch Hun is desirable. That will be somewhat different.

Here is an offer already ready to fly to Japan. Captain Rickenbacker is willing. The captain has had experience in the air, and possesses the ambition to be the first to cross the greater ocean in that way. Specifically referred to Thomas H. Lee, who has $50,000 which he has expressed willingness to give to the first person over.

It is interesting to read, eleven days after the occurrence a solemn decision by the Board of Boxing Control that the Dempsey-Tonny fight ended in the third round. The impression had already obtained that this matter was definitely over a very few minutes after it commenced.

Prohibition is having effect in ways not calculated upon. Servitors who have revelled in tips are complaining. It is probably a fact that the man who remains sober and unexcited is more deliberate in bestowing largess than the man who has absorbed cocktails and is more or less obsessed with the idea that he owns the earth. Besides, he is not so likely to find himself in places where tips are incumbent.

After confessing in apparent remorse to the brutal murder of his wife, expressing great love for her, and stating his inability to account for his act, the Ukiah murderer next hints of plans of defense to save his skin. It often turns out that way when murderers become muddied with sorrow.

The old story of the sailor with a wife in every port has been exemplified right at home through a case in court. The modern acceleration of speed has not changed everything. Among the things that still persist much as they were in slower times is human nature.

Evidently Congress is not going to change the status of prohibition. The status of the legislative body has materially changed since prohibition was enacted, but there is no disposition to relieve the situation created by the preceding body. Besides, it seems to be considered wise to let the national sentiment crystallize on the proposition.

Celebrations of natal days get a new impetus this year. Our anniversary and that of the French tea days later were observed with an increased zest, the countries having emerged from the gloom in which they were enveloped on the last recurrence.

They seem to be at it again down on the Mexican border. The town of San Antonio, Mexico, has been captured by a force of bandits. They posed as a detachment of Carranza's army. As San Antonio is but fifteen miles from the line it will be seen that the disorder persists too close to be comfortable.

George Parker picked up a hand bag on the highway Thursday evening containing passports and two round trip tickets to Hong Kong worth $500 each, a Wells-Fargo traveler's check for $170, $8 in silver and numerous toilet articles. The steamer on which the tickets were good for passage was to leave San Francisco Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and on account of the telephone and telegraph, operators strike it was impossible to get in communication with the owners and let them know the whereabouts of their lost property. George drove to San Francisco Friday evening, delivered his find to the rightful owners and was given $25 along with profuse thanks.—Tracy Press.

In "Twenty years ago" in yesterday's Republican was a despatch from Ithaca announcing that Prof. Benjamin Ide Wheeler of Cornell regarded his acceptance of the presidency of the University of California as "still undecided," and that it would depend on compliance with his "request to have certain things changed." ROLAND WANTS TO KNOW WHY SUCH IS THUSLY

FILIAL PIETY IN CHINA

When I reached the top of the Holy Mountain I bowed before the image of the God of Life, and made a solemn vow: "Make my father well, and I will leave my wife and home. For fifteen years I will not eat a morsel of food I have not begged—neither will I sleep under a cover that is clean."

"Fifteen years! Fifteen. That did not seem so very long, when I should be repaying the gods for their great kindness. This was one hundred and eighty months—and that many moons had only five thousand and forty days."

"Then I had to stop thinking, for my mind was dull and my heart all worn away. Each morning saw me wandering still—each night brought me one day nearer the end of my task. From village to village I wandered, from temple to temple I bowed before the images I read all in the inscriptions on all the shrines. Once I read of a man who had given up thirty years of his life in exchange for the life of his father. Then I felt that my vow was far too small! For many days I went through a region of graves. I read all that had been carved in the stones set at each mound that marked the resting-place of thousands of men. Sometimes I slept inside old fallen sepulchres. Sometimes I lay beside the road, with my face turned to heaven. I tried to forget to count the days, but my thought was forever fixed on that one thing. At length I knew there were before me just one hundred months. One hundred. That seemed longer to me than fifteen years had seemed the day I left my home."

"When there were but fifty moons ahead of me I made another pilgrimage to the Holy Mountain. There I remained for many, many days. Something seemed to fasten my body to the stones where I slept, and would not let me go. There came the time for worship to the Holy Mountain. Thousands of pilgrims from many lands came wandering there, seeking a blessing. The beggars reaped a bountiful harvest. Some days I collected more food than I could eat. This I always divided with the lepers and the blind. I also gave them a portion of my copper coins. One day, as I sat between two—one blind and one a leper—I saw one of our old servants approaching. He walked in front of a chair borne by four men. The curtains were drawn. Just when they reached the spot where I knelt a voice called the bearers to stop. Then my wife raised the curtain, passed some money to the servant, asked him to place it in my bowl, lowered the curtain and the chair went on its way into the temple. My hands and feet were cold and something inside me seemed to break. I placed the coin between my teeth and tried to crush it. I struck my head against the stone steps to make my pain less and pinched my face until the blood came. Some of the other beggars laughed at me, and one said I was having a fit. I crawled on my hands and knees until the darkness covered the earth, then I lay in the dirt and beat my head on the ground until the sun came over the hills again. Here is the coin she had given me between my teeth and tried to crush it. I struck my head against the stone steps to make my pain less and pinched my face until the blood came. Peacock Auto Team Defeats Merchants By a Big Score

In a game that was full of thrills the Peacock Autos, defeated the Elmburst Merchants in a thrilling game by the score of 4 to 3.

The Peacock have reloaded their betting eyes and picked Kelley for eleven hits. The players of the Peacock Autos were the third best feature of the game. Burns in left field made two great running catches with runners on second and third. The Peacock Autos also had a great running catch six inches off the bases during the game and also scored the winning run after he had walked. Frances on first played the game as a big league. Valente on second in the box hit a double. Kelley had to give way to Burns after the score was tied and even on the bags. Burns got away without being hit, only one foul ball hitting him in the fourth inning, he pitched. Kelley at second played well, keeping five chance without a boot.

Y.M.I. of Alameda Give Baltimores Their First Defeat

The Alameda Y. M. I. team came back after a long absence to defeat the Baltimore team on the latter's grounds by a score of 9 to 3. The defeat for the Park boys was the first of the season. Nelson, pitcher for the Park, won his first game and four consecutive wins as well as allowing only five hits. The hitting stars for the winners were Whitehead and Beumack, who got three hits each. Burns and Scott pitched for the Baltimores and allowed fifteen hits. Next Sunday the Y. M. I. will play St. Joseph's Sodality at Franklin park.

MAYS QUILTS RED SOX WITHOUT WARNING

CLEVELAND, July 16.—Carl Mays, the Red Sox hurler, has quit the Boston Red Sox.

This followed an argument with Manager Barrows, it is said. Mays left the team in Chicago without saying where he was going, but now is in Boston. However, he is quoted as saying "Ed Barrows is a fine fellow and a gentleman, but I cannot preserve with the Red Sox."

Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, and New York of the American league, are said to be seeking the services of Mays.

Alameda's War-Time Honor Perpetuated on the Sea

OVER-THE-TOP MEMORIES IN NEW VESSEL

THE SHIP OF ALAMEDA.
By ALBERT RUPP.
(The Shipyard Poet).
Tremendous miracle of steel,
In all thy towering majesty!
Blest with the pride our strong hearts feel.

Go forth upon the solemn sea!
And over the waves thy sway proclaim,
And give to the world a career of fame,
And bear the good and glorious name
Of the ship of Alameda!

Cheers, and shouts, and music fair
Hail thy ponderous thrilling slide.

Out of thy birthplace in the air,
On to the bosom of the tide.
There for thy lofty labors roll,
And girdle the globe from Pole to Pole,
And carry our name to the highest goal.

On! Ship of Alameda!

ALAMEDA, July 16.—Alameda's honor ship, the City of Alameda, will be floating in Oakland harbor this evening awaiting the final touches before setting forth to the seven seas of the world to carry to all parts of the globe the information that Alameda city won proud honors in war time by war bond committee; John U. Calkins, government vessel was to be launched at 5 o'clock this afternoon, in the midst of a big crowd of spectators. The craft was to be christened with a bottle of champagne by Mrs. Lucretia Otis as the vessel started down the ways.

There was to be a brief ceremony participated in by Mayor Frank Otis, chairman of the Liberty bond committee; Jno. U. Calkins, governor of the San Francisco reserve bank; Mrs. Otis, the christener and wife of Mayor Otis; members of the Liberty bond committee, city officials and Chamber of Commerce representatives, as honor guests on the christening stand.

OVER-TOP IN EACH ISSUE

The City of Alameda was named by the Liberty bond committee, this name being the most popular of numerous names suggested for the craft. Alameda went over the top with each bond issue and in the Liberty bond campaign achieved such a large percentage of over-subscriptions that the city won the honor of naming a government ship. With the Bethlehem plant operating within the city, it naturally followed that the ship to be christened should be built in this city. The City of Alameda is one of the standardized government craft on which the government specialized during the war, and the tradition of which has continued after peace in order to keep the shortage in ship tonnage.

As soon as the crowd had reached the launching ways, Mayor Frank Otis was to make a brief opening address, reviewing the achievements of Alameda in war bond subscriptions and telling in detail the record of the city in the Fourth or Liberty bond campaign, in which the city won the distinction of naming a government craft. He pictured the advertising this city would receive when the Liberty bond ship visited the different ports of the world and was promptly recognized as an honor ship and a floating monument of Alameda's patriotic efforts during the war.

COMPLIMENTS ALAMEDA.
Governor Calkins of the Federal Reserve Bank was chosen to speak at the launching because of his close connection and work in the different bond issues. The banker had charge of the bond work on the Pacific Coast after being chosen governor of the war.

POLICE RAID SHIPWORKERS' CRAP GAMES

HE'S ANXIOUS TO WED TEACHER IF SHE'S FAIR, POOR

BERKLEY, July 16.—"Wanted—a literary teacher-object, matriculated."

This is the sort of an advertisement that Richard Louis Davis, of Touche, Wash., has asked to have inserted in the Summer Session Californian, the daily newspaper published in the University of California.

She must "enjoy good health, be reasonable, fair, poor and good-hearted."

He says he wants a teacher because she will be above "skim-milk education."

Of himself, he says: "I am 32 years of age, of sanguine ideas, optimistic views, of quiet taste, evenly constituted, and ignorant enough to believe that I am pleasant and agreeable."

I have traveled some and am a student of human nature and love literature."

"I have never taken intoxicating drinks, nor used tobacco in any form. I don't play pool, billiards, nor bowl in the alleys."

The Chinese establishments raided are 2315 Webster and 2407 Webster.

In court this morning Ah Fun, one of the two Chinese, forfeited $100 and the other oriental, Cham Chow, was fined $25. The seven whites forfeited their bail of $5 each. In the crap game raid all the arrested ones forfeited their $5 bail save William Franks, who was fined $10.

The white winners were: John O'Brien, 224 Eleventh street, Oakland; William Fraser, 710 Pacific avenue, Alameda; George Demetrak, 946 Olney street, San Francisco; Oscar Abrams, 1378 Eleventh street, San Francisco; John Seery, 1404 Guero street, San Francisco; Andrew Menefit, 1431 Tenth street, Oakland, and the Russian E. S. Kostin, 1111 Fulton, N.Y.; J. Manuel Rose, R. C. Bryan, 1507 Webster street, Alameda.

The raiding officers were Lieutenant George Daly, Detective William Wahnuth and Patrolmen Grant Hicks, Bert Conant, Stanley Loveland and James Ross for the gambling places, and Lieutenant Daly and Patrolman Louis Meyer, William Franks and Bert Conant for the crap game.

The crap game squad sat in an upper office room at the shipyards and waited while the shipyard workers passed out the gates and started their crap game. The crap shooters kept close guard on approaching cars and autos, looking for the police, but no one came. At the shipyard gates and were considerably surprised when the officers emerged from the shipyard.

The reserve bank in San Francisco to succeed the late James Lynch.

Calkins was to speak briefly, expressing his pleasure at being asked to speak at the launching complimenting Alameda upon the city's showing, and also complimenting the Bethlehem plant for its ship construction record during the war.

Immediately following the launching was to come the presentation to the shipyard band of a banner, the gift of the Home Coming Reception.

BUENOS AIRES, July 16.—A young American woman played a highly important part in the uncovering of the German plot to involve Mexico and Japan in the war with the United States, as revealed by the Zimmerman letter two years ago, the newspaper La Nacion declares.

La Nacion asserts that it received full information of how the United States secret service learned copies of the letter relating to the Zimmerman from a man who was until recently in the American secret service. He was a trusted agent of the American State department, the newspaper declares, and trailed German agents acting as intermediaries between Foreign Secretary Zimmerman in Berlin and the German minister to Mexico, Von Eckhardt.

Virginia Meyer, Jane Gray, Charles Reider, George Boehn, Rate, Frank Smith and Gordon Clifford, who figured in the fight, in which they were held captive in a room over the cafe and thrown out the window early yesterday morning, are free on bail of $50 each, having been booked on vagrancy charges. In the meantime Lynch has ordered a full investigation into the affairs of the cafe.

The Hoffman was originally the possessor of a bar license, which was to go to Mexico City on a Dutch passport, ostensibly as a tourist, but in reality the carrier of valuable information to Von Eckhardt revealing the German plot against the United States. German girl was stopped at Laerdal, Norway, on her return to Mexico City. There she represented herself to be the emissary from Bernstorff and was employed as confidential secretary by the German minister.

It was while acting in this role that she obtained possession of the documents that were subsequently given publication from Washington, creating a world-wide sensation.

Correspondence seized by agents of the State department in 1917, just before the United States entered the war, revealed the existence of a German plot to embroil the United States in difficulties with Japan and Mexico. The correspondence consisted of letters from Zimmerman, then foreign secretary in the German cabinet, to Von Eckhardt, the German minister to Mexico, who was to sound the Mexican government on the scheme.

Zimmermann subsequently issued a statement admitting authorship of the letters and justifying his action on the ground that the United States apparently was about to declare war on Germany and that he was attempting to keep her military resources engaged on this side of the Atlantic. Both the Mexican and Japanese governments denied knowledge of the conspiracy.

Crouch Slave Case Is Held Up Await Word From U. S. Attorney

The United States Attorney General in Washington is now considering whether or not authority will be given for the prosecution, under the Mann act, of Albert W. Crouch, a naval reserve officer, whose address has been 3603 Humboldt avenue, in Oakland, according to Attorney Howard K. James, acting for Major William F. Deegan, in New York.

Major Deegan charged that

Crouch and Mrs. Deegan came from

New York to Oakland and here lived together as man and wife. The major is suing Crouch for $25,000 damages for "criminal conversation" and illegal relations with Mrs. Deegan at the Oakland address, the suit having been filed in Oakland yesterday.

Attorney James says that Crouch and Mrs. Deegan came from
